

*I know you can solve it on your own, you don't need help from AI; just try yourself.
If you feel stuck, remember that I'm in Room 935 (B), or you can always send me a message on Discord.*

- [Q1] Write a bash script that takes a positive integer as input and counts display how many of its digits are even, odd, and zero. Also display the sum of all even digits. [5]

Sample Input	Sample Output
Enter number: 5832047	Even digits: 3 Odd digits: 3 Zero digits: 1 Sum of even digits: 14

- [Q2] Write a bash script that continuously takes integers as input and calculates their sum. The program should stop when the user enters 0. At the end, display the sum, number of positive values, and number of negative values entered. [5]

Sample Input	Sample Output
5 -2 10 -7 4 0	Sum: 10 Positive numbers: 3 Negative numbers: 2

- [Q3] Write a program that allows a user to enter a password. The user gets a maximum of 3 attempts. [5]
- If the password is correct, print Login Successful.
 - If the password is incorrect, print the remaining attempts.
 - After 3 incorrect attempts, print Account Locked.

Assume the correct password is 12345.

Sample Input	Sample Output
Enter password: 11111 Enter password: 22222 Enter password: 12345	Incorrect password. Attempts remaining: 2 Incorrect password. Attempts remaining: 1 Login Successful